

SOUTH AMERICA SEEN AS LARGE CITRUS MARKET

Florida Growers Urged To Supply Eager Demands

BARTOW, July 30.—(A.P.)—Consideration of South America as a market for Florida citrus products was urged on shippers and growers in this state by William M. Moran, of Buenos Aires, in a statement here.

American citrus is eagerly sought in the South American capitals, he said, and high prices are paid. "The city of Buenos Aires affords a wonderful market for fruits of all kinds.

Supply insufficient For the best oranges we had to be content with the comparatively small number of oranges produced in the state of Bahia in the Republic of Brazil. They are of fine quality but are not produced in quantities sufficient to fill the demand of Brazil, the Argentine and other South American countries.

Large quantities of citrus were imported from Europe and Northern Africa but about two years ago the California producers established agencies in Buenos Aires, and they have built up a fine trade.

Grapefruit Expensive Florida oranges are not to be had, though last year I found grapefruit from Winter Haven and Mount Dora on the Buenos Aires market retailing for the equivalent of about 60 cents of our money. This made them taste very much like money, especially to Americans.

California advertises its fruits very liberally in those South American cities in which they have established markets, and that helps sales, of course.

MINISTER CONQUERS FLORIDA 'BAD LAND'

'Fighting Parson' Braves the Swamps for Converts

Edward Dunklin, an itinerant Baptist minister, after a six-year battle, has succeeded in taming the last of the American "bad land," the Everglades.

Courage was the only equipment Dunklin had when, like the "fighting parson" in Western frontier days, he waded through snake and alligator infested swamps intent upon converting a district controlled by desperadoes fully as dangerous as the Jesse James crowd in its heyday, despite the fact it was but a short ride from the haunts of fashion and wealth in the booming state.

Not only did the missionary win the confidence of the desperadoes, the American magazine says, in recounting his work, but he won over the powerful woman leader, known as the "Queen of the Everglades," to his missionary work.

Dunklin's first appearance in the district was greeted with a shower of stones and refusals of food or shelter. At his first meeting, when bullets were dropped into the collection box as a threat and warning to get out, he defied the crowd, declaring that he could only die once and was not afraid to do so.

Months later the first sign of friendliness toward him was a collection which contained two ears of corn, two pawpaws, three pumpkins, six bananas and 24 limes. The confidence progressed until three of the worst desperadoes surreptitiously gave him a dollar and three more a quarter each.

Now, at the completion of six years of work, the outlaws have become real friends of Dunklin and have built him a little house on Lake Okeechobee, where his meetings flourish. Moreover, the country has become as safe as any other part of the state and good settlers are flocking in to cultivate the rich muck lands.

During his absence, the different state boards, each of which he is chairman, have held their Tuesday meetings to consider routine matters only. Business facing the internal improvement board, the educational board and the board of commissioners of state institutions awaits the opinion of the governor before it is disposed of.

Probably the most pressing subject to be given the attention of the executive, however, concern the matter of appointments to offices created by the recent legislature.

More than a dozen places on eight different commissions or departments remain to be filled. Included in these are the offices of the motor vehicle commissioner, the wild life commissioner, Broward county port commissioner, the state auditing board (six members remaining to be appointed), the state forestry board, the osteopathic examiners board, a judge for the sixth judicial circuit and a judge for the civil court of record of Dade county.

Bowers Campbell, city attorney, to go ahead with the necessary court action to approve the bonds for early sale.

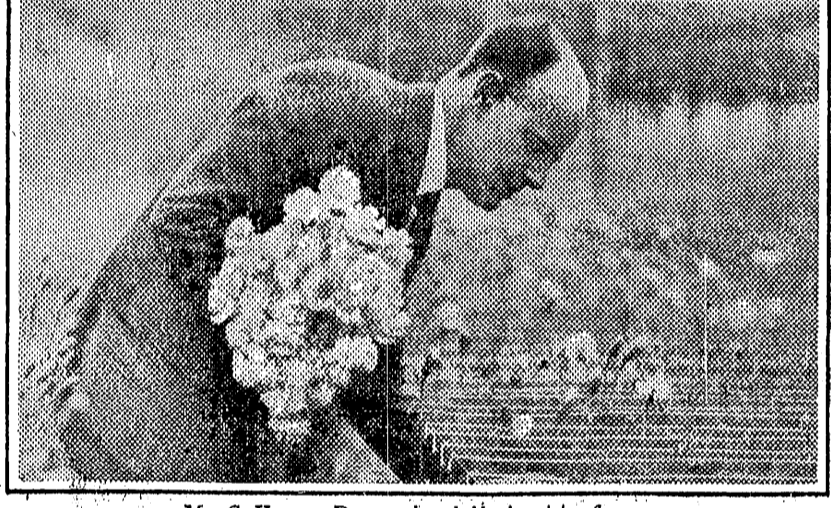

The action was taken in the face of statements from representatives of the opposition that the petition of recall would be filed. Mr. G. Hayden Dunn, whose hobby is raising flowers

"I once thought I would always be ill..."

"MY LIFE had been uneventful, tranquil. Good health and good spirits had combined to make my daily work a pleasure.

"Then—the War. The trenches. Forced marches. Cold. Hunger. Every hardship of a soldier's life I knew. Finally I was gassed—and wounded.

"When peace came, bringing dreams of home fires, I was in a pitiable state. I returned to my native hills, to my old home—only to find myself, a few months later, a complete physical wreck.

"Four years passed. I spent hundreds of dollars on drugs and medicines. But vainly I fought to steady my frayed nerves and to rid myself of my chronic stomach trouble. I had almost abandoned hope of ever being well again.

"Repeatedly a fellow worker had urged me to try Yeast. At last he won me over. I began eating it—and in less than three months I had regained my old health and happiness.

"My favorite pastime is working with the flowers and vegetables around our home. Now, no matter how strenuous my day has been, I still have energy left to indulge this hobby in the evening."

G. Hayden Dunn, Medford, Mass.

MR. MELBOURNE DE PASZTHORY looks like an all round athlete—and he is! At the University of Southern California he won the middleweight wrestling championship.

"Ever since my high school days," he writes, "I have periodically eaten Fleischmann's Yeast. It has enabled me to keep in the very pink of physical trim, to restore my system quickly to order whenever my digestion showed traces of being upset, to keep my blood clear and my skin free of embarrassing eruptions."

MELBOURNE DE PASZTHORY, Pasadena, Calif.

"TRY AS I WOULD, I could find nothing that would clear my skin. I was very badly run down—probably this was the cause of my skin trouble. I ran along this way until about a year ago, when one of my friends said, 'Why don't you try eating Yeast?' I was skeptical. I must admit—but I began. To my surprise my skin began to clear, and ever since I have felt fine."

CHRISTINE INGLIS, Vancouver, B. C.

For the health that can be yours—do this:

Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one cake before each meal. Eat it plain in small pieces, or on crackers, in fruit juice, milk or water. For constipation physicians say it is best to dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before meals and before going to bed. (Be sure that a regular time for evacuation is made habitual.) Dangerous cathartics will gradually become unnecessary.
