Possessing every natural advantage as to location and environment, the city of Okeechobee is destined to be the metropolis of central Florida. It is today, the inland terminus of all main highways, railways and waterways—a veritable clearing house for the vast resources of this inland empire. The spectacular expansion of this beautiful little city, on the north shores of Lake Okeechobee, second largest fresh water lake in the country, from a village of eight hundred people, just five years ago, to more than three thousands today, is a conservative forerunner of what is to occur here during the next few months.

Okeechobee Manor's just without the borders of the city of Okeechobee, within the very shadow of her ever-rising skyline, comprises a tract of the finest uplands in the state, possessing by Federal report, the longest growing season of any region in the United States, the most productive rain-fall, and soil which is not surpassed in fertility elsewhere in the entire world.

The property is surrounded by the tracts of the Rockefeller-Vanderbilt syndicate, and those of other prominent financiers, whose faith in the Okeechobee country, and its matchless potentialities is confirmed by their generous investments here.

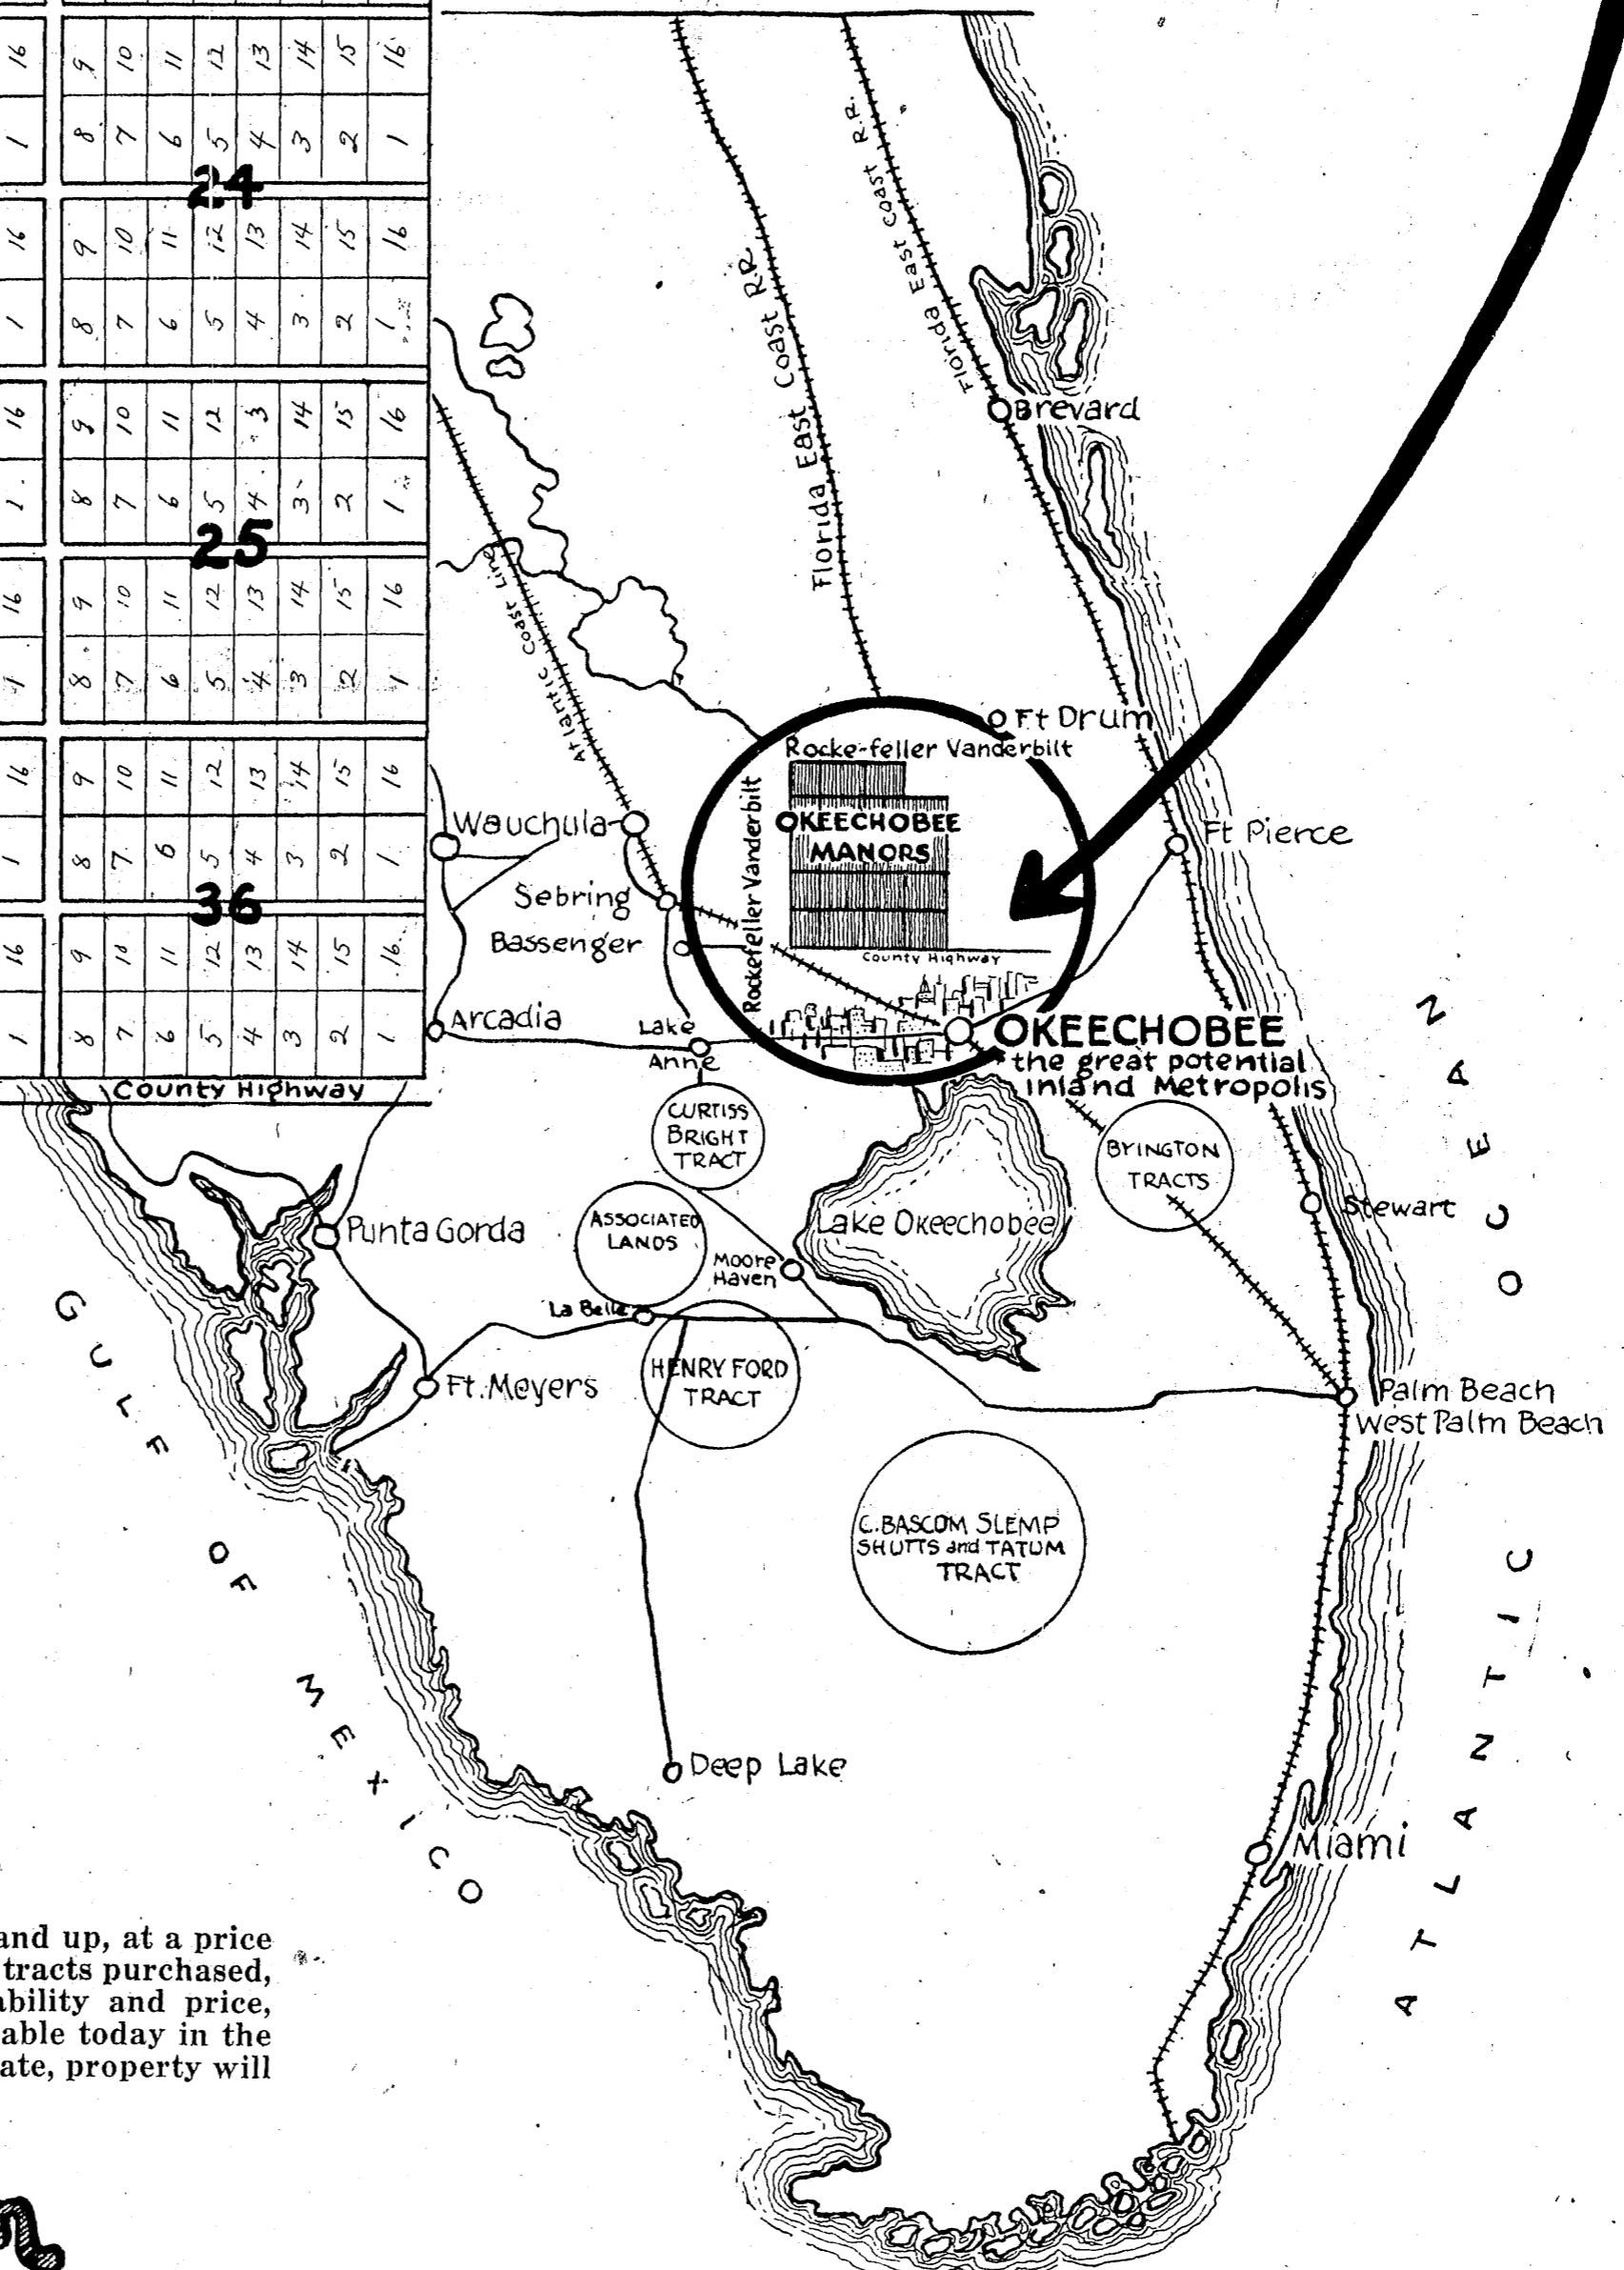

Okeechobee Manors is available today in tracts of 10 acres each and up, at a price range of from $75 to $85 per acre, depending upon the size of the tracts purchased, and by comparison with surrounding properties, as to desirability and price, Okeechobee Manors comprises the most desirable acreage available today in the entire Southland, and with values soaring at an unprecedented rate, property will not be long available here at today's low prices.
